Como Gardens open gardens weekend on the 14th and 15th of April coincides with the 100th anniversary of the sinking of the RMS Titanic.

April 14th 1912 was the actual date the RMS Titanic hit the iceberg; it then sank some hours later in the early hours on the morning 15th of April 1912.

Surrey Hills Model Boat Club who have participated in our open gardens weekends for many years now, have a member Peter Brewer, who has a 2.7 meter long (built to 1-100 scale) steam turbine powered replica HMS Titanic ship model, which will be part of a display and re-enactment of the first part of the sinking. There will be an interesting dialogue following the enactment that will explain much of what happened in the tragic moments that followed. The Model Club will present a lot of additional information on the Club stand about the Titanic tragedy much of which is not generally known.

This will be a very spectacular event with all members of the boat club involved, some dressed in period costume adding ambience.

The clubs stand will have memorabilia and a photo gallery for your further interest.
